"Unsoldierly as the Boers might seem there is no mistaking their physical fitness. Nearly all of them are atrong powerfully built men, while a few are veritable giants. They were at in highest spirits; for instance on the night of our capture our field cornet was induced to preside over an impromptu smoking concert. It is his intention to especially devote his pen to urging the abolition of the limit of cost now imposed upon armor his pen to urging the aboution of the limit of cost now imposed upon armor purchased by the government, and to ask for sufficient appropriations to enable the department to procure Krupp armor for the batticships of the Maine class and the projected battleship and armored cruisers.

The three batticships and three armored cruisers authorized by the last Congress have not yet been laid down, the law prohibiting the awarding of contracts for their hull and machinery in advance of the contracts for armor. Yet the secretary believes that an increase, however small, should be made during the coming session.

It can be stated that he will certainly not recommend the authorization of more than three protected cruisers of the Olympia class, and he may determine to recommend in their place that Congress authorize several small sheathed cruisers and gunboats capable of doing effective work in the Philippines.

A STRONG BELIEF

Mr. Chamberlain and Cecil Rhodes are Identical.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—During the debate on the second reading of the appropriation bill in the house of commons today, James H. Dalziel, Liberal, me ber for the Kirkcaldy district, exprehs-ed the opinion that one of the greatest difficulties in arriving at a settlement with President Kruger had been that, rightly or wrongly, the President had believed Mr. Chamberlain, the British secretary of state for the colonies, and Cecil Rhodes were identical. He added that Mr. Chamberlain had given grounds for this belief by suppressing grounds for this belief by suppressing telegrams, whereupon the colonial secretary tartly intervened, saying: "I have never suppressed telegrams. I have not got them."

Mr. Chamberlain also denied that he had refused to see Dr. Montagu White, the agent of the Transwaal, who, the colonial secretary added, had never applied for an audience. The speaker, William Court Gully, intervened at this juncture and declared that all references to such matters were out of order. Michael Davitt, Irish Nationalist, member for South Mayo, announced in the house of commons to-day that he would resign to-morrow as a protest against the Boer war.
